me: not sure if you saw, but I released the goods on Romas/COIN two days back me: via http://wiki.echelon2.org/wiki/Romas/COIN me: and a Guardian op-ed
Wayne: Hehe. And Aaron is trying to recup his reputation.
Wayne: I think he may be realizing that it's too late.
me: he would have to be able to provide his services on a clandestine basis me: Mantech and TASC were both offering to give him role at new companies me: he has the ability
me: but I'd imagine the problem is that any gig he took, if known to public, would be scrutinized Wayne: You want this publicized?
me: Romas/COIN? yep
Wayne: OK, let me send it out, see if we can get some attention.
me: wonderful, thanks
Wayne: Whats the code name for the op?
me: our op?
me: or theirs?
Wayne: Yes, need to put it in the hashtag me: Romas/COIN
me: we've been using #COIN as a hash Wayne: #COIN doesn't work, too easy to mistake for something else.
me: #Romas might be best Wayne: No, #Romas/Coin doesn't work, a slash messes up a hash tag. just did a search, #Romas is already in use for the op, so I'll use it, and I'll try to get some friend to talk about it.
me: great, thanks
Wayne: Heck, it's already out there, look at all the results: https://twitter.com/#!/search/%23romas Wayne: CRN, Crikey, heck, it's going gold. me: I know, but it should be getting more than that Wayne: Oh, it will. Time for some judicious editing.
Wayne: OK, Aaron and Greg will be a lot less happy.
Wayne: Check the Wikipedia entry for HBGary :)
me: heh, nice
me: looks like there's a formatting problem re the link at bottom
